FIND BONES OF OLD MAN MISSING FOUR YEARS

George Fetzter Disappeared From Near Runville, April 8, 1907.

KILLED BY GUN SHOT

Death Accidental, Says Coroner's Jury—Man's Bones Found but One-Half Mile from Home—Flesh Gone and His Clothing Rotted Away.

The mystery surrounding the strange disappearance four years ago of George Michael Fetzter, from his home midway between Runville and Gum Stump, was cleared up on Sunday, last, when his skeleton and a few shreds of clothing were found. In keeping with the mysterious disappearance was the fact that the bones of the body were found hardly half a mile from Fetzter's home and but a few feet from an old coal road.

Fetzter, who was an old soldier, evidently came to his death by the accidental discharge of his gun, which he had taken with him on the day he disappeared. When examined by Coroner S. M. Huff, of Milesburg, the skeleton showed traces of a gunshot wound, the shot having entered under the chin and leaving at the rear of the right side of the skull. The testimony at the Coroner's inquest revealed that the gun was easily discharged, at times going off without pressure on the trigger. It is supposed that Fetzter was standing with the gun at his side when it was accidentally discharged and that the shot entered his head, below the chin, causing instant death. Lying where it had fallen, and with the gun a few inches to the left, Fetzter's body remained undiscovered until after the flesh had vanished, his clothing had rotted and all but completely disappeared. The gun covered with rust after four years of exposure to the weather, contained one empty shell. The Coroner's jury returned a verdict of death due to accidental shooting. On the Coroner's jury were the following: John Sawley, William Shawley, William Walker, Jonathan Packer, Edward Grove and Harry Miller.

There were all kinds of rumors resulting from the finding of Fetzter's body. Some were but a revival of imaginary tales current ever since the man disappeared. Coroner Huff, after the inquest, expressed the belief that there was not the slightest reason to believe that Fetzter had met with foul play. Nearby where the man's bones lay were found his knife, pipe, buttons from his hunting coat, and other little trinkets. No money was found. One rumor had it that Fetzter, on the day he disappeared, had $5 or $6 in money with him. If so and the money was in paper, it undoubtedly rotted and disappeared among an inch and a half of moldy leaves at the point where the man died. The ground was closely examined but no trace of silver money was found.

Fetzter disappeared from his home on April 8, 1907. A strange feature of the case is that immediately after he disappeared a large number of men scoured the country, especially that section near by the man's home, only to give up the search without the slightest clue to Fetzter's whereabouts. On Sunday a young man named Sweitzer and several others were in the vicinity of the Fetzter home when they suddenly came across the bones of the long missing man. The old coal road, nearby which the bones were found, had been traveled more or less in the last four years, and a short time after Fetzter disappeared a number of men were engaged in cutting fence posts not a great distance from where the bones were found. Strange to say, not until Sunday was any trace discovered to indicate where Fetzter's body lay.

At the Coroner's inquest his wife and two sons, also young Sweitzer and Lawrence Hancock were the witnesses. Their testimony was chiefly to identify the bones as all that remained of Fetzter.

MOOSE TO BANQUET

Delightful Event has been Planned for Saturday Evening, May 19.

What will undoubtedly prove the most delightful social function since the organization of the Bellefonte lodge, No. 206, Loyal Order of Moose, will be the first annual banquet, to be held on the evening of Friday, May 19, in the Moose Club, on Spring Street. There are upward of 500 members of the lodge and it is expected that virtually all will be in attendance at the banquet.

For a period of three months, beginning May 15, next, the charter will be reopened and the initiation fee made $5, which will no doubt be attractive to many desirous of applying for membership. Formal action to reopen the charter was taken at a recent meeting of the lodge.

Of no little interest to every member was the announcement made this week that the trustees of the lodge have rented the hall in the Undine Hose Company for a meeting place during the coming year. Equally interesting is the announcement that the regular meeting nights have been changed from the second and fourth Tuesday to the second and fourth Wednesday of each month. The first meeting of the lodge in the new meeting place will be held on Wednesday evening, May 10.

The officers of the lodge are as follows: A. D. Tanyer, State College, dictator; George Harpster, vice dictator; Dr. A. W. Hafer, prelate; J. Harry Williams, sergeant at arms; John M. Fisher, treasurer; John W. Gross, inside guard; Martin Cooney, outside guard; James A. Schofield, George Waite and S. E. Hepburn, trustees; John L. Dunlap, past dictator; J. H. Decker, secretary. The examining physicians of the lodge follow: Dr. W. W. Feidt, Dr. David Dale and Dr. J. C. Rogers, Bellefonte; Dr. John R. G. Allison, Centre Hall; Dr. O. W. McEntire, Howard, and Dr. W. S. Glenn, State College.

TRESPASSERS FINED

Penna. Railroad Officer Picks up Several for Walking on Tracks.

For the second time in the last few months, arrests for trespassing on the tracks of the Pennsylvania Railroad were made on Saturday. Officer Giles, of Tyrone, a railroad police officer, arrested J. H. Rider, Logan Long and Isaac Weiland, all of this place, charging them with violating the law prohibiting trespassing on railroad property. The three men are employed by the Pennsylvania Match Company, of this place. They had been at work loading and unloading lumber in the No. 2 storage yard of the match company, below town. A Pennsylvania Railroad siding runs into the storage yard. The Bald Eagle Valley railroad runs parallel with the yard. When the three men quit work, instead of traveling on the wagon road they walked onto the railroad and were on their way to the match company plant when arrested. All three were no little surprised when informed by the railroad company officer that they were under arrest. It being their first offense Squire Henry D. Brown fined each $2 and costs amounting to $1.

A man named Darrah was also placed under arrest on Saturday, charged with trespassing. Officer Giles did not take him before Squire Brown but notified him to appear for a hearing. Darrah failed to show up.

Officer Giles also arrested several residents of Milesburg, charging them with trespassing on railroad company property. They were Robert Lucas, Elias Hancock, Lich Aikens and a fourth man whose name was not secured. They were taken before Squire Johnston, who fined them $1 each. All four were arrested near the Pennsylvania Railroad station, at Milesburg.

Justices Hold Over.

Prothonotary Kimpert this week received from Secretary of the Commonwealth McAfee, at Harrisburg, formal notice to the effect that all Justices of the Peace whose commissions would have expired on the first Monday of May, 1911, but whose terms are extended by constitutional amendments, shall continue to serve until the first Monday in January, 1912, and that it will not be necessary for them to renew their bonds or commissions.

Fire at Antes Fort.

Damage to the amount of $3,000 resulted at Antes Fort on Monday morning, when three barns burned. The fire started about 4 o'clock, originating in one of the barns and is believed to have been of incendiary origin. The Antes Fort hotel was slightly damaged.

Judge's Salary Increased.

Should Governor Tener sign the judges salary increase bill, the salary of Judge Orvis, in this county, would be increased from $5,000 to $6,000 a year.

BIG ELECTRIC LIGHTS TO PREVENT SPOONING

Huge Reflector to Illuminate Grounds at New High School.

GOOD OLD DAYS GONE

Bellefonte Directors Persuade Borough Council to Provide Publicity Cure for Practices Said to Lower Morals of the Town.

A big, electric light, backed up by a huge reflector, is a plan urged by the Bellefonte School Board and approved by the borough Council to put a stop to love-sick couples who make it a practice to gather in the grounds of the new High School building to "spoon." That there is entirely too much "spooning" done there night after night, to say nothing of practices calculated to lower the morals of the community, is the belief of the School Board. Going on the assumption that nobody would care to "spoon" while a big glaring electric light made the surroundings as light as day, W. C. Heinle, L. H. Gettig and D. F. Fortney, representing the School Board, appeared before Council, at the Monday night meeting, and asked that the borough give its assistance to the extent of providing and maintaining the "anti-spooning" remedy. Council being composed almost exclusively of married men, some of them lacking all sense of anything sentimental, the suggestion met with instant favor and the request was granted.

The Street Committee of Council was instructed to cooperate with the School Board in having the desired light or lights placed before many more nice warm evenings roll around. It is proposed erecting a large light, or group of Tungsten lamps in the rear of the new High School building and so arranged that a reflector will throw the light far down onto the grounds. Smaller lights may be so placed along either side of the building to illuminate the numerous dark nooks that now seem so attractive to the class of persons complained of.

This was but one of numerous matters brought to the attention of Council. H. S. Ray, proprietor of the Brokerhoff House, gave Council a hard "problem" to solve when he appeared and asked for information as to where he might dump a large quantity of refuse which has accumulated at his hotel. It seems that a number of the old dumping grounds nearby town have been closed and driven find it difficult to find any place where they may dump refuse other than ashes. Mr. Ray remained right on hand to see what Council might do for him, but after talking it over and not getting anywhere in the matter, President Harper referred it to the Sanitary Committee for investigation. Herman Holz, of Joseph & Company, appeared and invited the Street Committee to call on him any time, not later than 10 o'clock at night, and he would take them on a personally conducted tour of the alley between the Joseph store and the Brokerhoff House. The condition of the alley, said Mr. Holz, is intolerable. He was informed that the Street Committee would be glad to make the trip under such a competent guide.

J. Will Conley sent a letter notifying Council that he had fallen on the sidewalk in front of Dr. Fisher's office, in Allegheny Street, ruining a suit of clothes and sustaining painful bruises. He served notice that he expected the borough to pay his doctor bill and also buy him a new suit of clothes. Council didn't say what it would do.

Mr. Keller announced that James Noonan, of the Brant House, demanded $500 for injuries sustained by his wife by falling into a hole in the street near his hotel some months ago. The matter has been before Council for some time. It has never been determined whether the borough or the Bellefonte Electric Company, whose employees dug the hole, was liable for the damages. For Mr. Noonan it was explained that he wanted to know something definite and this in the next few days. A special meeting of Council may be called to act in the matter.

Chairman Judge, of the Street Committee, reported numerous repairs made about town. Chairman Musser, of the Water Committee, reported $585.07 collected in water meter rents. His committee recommended that the same water rates for the borough of the last year apply for next year. This was accepted and approved. Chairman Keller, of the Finance Committee, reported a balance on hand of $129. Chairman Grimm, of the Village Improvement Committee, (Continued on page 4)

PUBLIC MAUSOLEUM IN UNION CEMETERY HERE

Cemetery Association May Accept Proposition to Build.

CHAPEL AND 400 CRYPTS

Part of Building to be Reserved for Holding Funeral Services—Corridors Leading from the Chapel will Contain Crypts for 400 Bodies.

A public mausoleum, containing crypts for 400 bodies and a chapel that will seat several hundred persons, may be built in the Union cemetery in Bellefonte. W. A. Rice, of Altoona, representing the Mausoleum Builders of America, whose main offices are in New York, has submitted a proposition to the Union Cemetery Association to build such a mausoleum and the belief of individual members of the association is that it will be accepted.

The estimated cost of the proposed mausoleum is $10,000. The proposition presented by Mr. Rice provides that his company receive free of charge four lots in the Union cemetery, covering a space all told of about 100 feet square. On this site he proposes building the mausoleum, the same to be of granite and to be built at the expense of the company he represents. He also proposes that the cemetery association receive 10 per cent. of all proceeds from the sale of crypts.

At a recent meeting of the cemetery association Mr. Rice submitted plans for the proposed mausoleum. The general plan of the structure is for a building of granite with a rotunda near the main entrance, which is to be used as a chapel. Leading from the chapel will be corridors containing the crypts. These corridors will be 12 feet in height. The rotunda for the chapel will, however, be considerably higher.

The crypts which will be offered for sale at $200, each, are arranged in tiers, one on top of another. Each crypt will be in two sections, each section large hold a body. The proposed plan provides for 400 crypts, or sufficient room for 400 bodies. Each crypt, after a body has been placed inside, is hermetically sealed and little by little the crypts become a solid and sealed abode, protected for ages by granite, marble and cement. Each crypt is provided with ventilators to make the mausoleum as sanitary as possible. By undertakers it is said that a body properly embalmed, if placed in a well ventilated crypt, will last for an indefinite period and eventually become petrified.

Two public mausoleums are to be built in Altoona. In recent years public mausoleums have been built in Cleveland, Detroit, Dayton and a number of other cities. If the cemetery association here concludes to accept the proposition the proposed mausoleum for Bellefonte will be under way during the next few months. Two sites are proposed for the mausoleum. One is on the brow of the hill, on the main driveway near the new section. The other is about 100 feet from the main entrance, nearby Howard Street. To secure the second proposed site it will be necessary to secure several burial plots owned by individuals. This may be done, if the plan materializes, by a purchase of the plots or by exchanging them for crypts in the mausoleum.

14 Killed in Train Wreck.

Fourteen persons were killed and many seriously hurt in the wrecking of a D. L. & W. excursion train, near Easton, Pa., on Saturday. The train was crowded with school teachers from Utica, N. Y. The wreck was caused by the giving way of a section of road bed at a sharp curve. An oil tank, near the tracks, was struck and the oil was spread over the wrecked train. Fire started and the train was burned. Some of those killed were burned to a crisp.

Alleged Theft of Clothing.

Squire William H. Musser on Monday issued a warrant for the arrest of Alvie Fetzters, charged with stealing a suit of clothes from the home of Edward Emel several days ago. Emel alleges that Fetzters, while intoxicated, called at the former's home when nobody was there but Mrs. Emel. She became frightened and left the house. When Fetzters left, it is alleged, he carried with him a suit of clothes recently purchased by Mr. Emel.

Ensign Bidwell Ill.

A telegram received on Tuesday from Portsmouth, Virginia, announced that Ensign Trood Bidwell, a son of Mr. and Mrs. H. M. Bidwell, of this place, is ill from typhoid fever.

ETTERS' SALARY $2,000

School Directors Give County Superintendent Increase of $308.

At the convention of school directors of Centre County, held in the Court House, on Tuesday morning, County Superintendent of Schools David O. Etters was accorded the honor of election to a third term of three years and his salary was increased from $1,692 to $2,000 a year. He had no opposition for reelection.

The salary increase was not effected until after considerable debate. It so happens that the salary in Centre County has been much lower than the average salary in other parts of the State. In fact, many other counties, smaller in area and having fewer schools, have been paying a much larger salary than has been received by the County Superintendent of Schools in this county.

D. F. Fortney, of Bellefonte, submitted the matter of increasing the salary of Superintendent Etters to the convention. He proposed that the salary be increased to $2,400, but this met with considerable opposition. W. C. Heinle then suggested that the salary be advanced from $1,692 to $2,150. He argued that this figure would be more in keeping with the salary paid in other counties. This, too, met with opposition and finally it was proposed that the salary be made $2,000. The convention approved the suggestion by a large majority vote.

In Clinton County, County Superintendent Ira N. McCloskey was re-elected to a fourth term, defeating W. I. Zechman, principal of the Salona High School, by a vote of 113 to 30. The salary was continued at $1,600. Professor E. S. Ling was re-elected superintendent of the schools in Lock Haven.

D. A. R. HAVE CONTEST

Mrs. Canfield and Mrs. Calloway in Spirited Race for Regent.

The liveliest contest in the history of the Bellefonte chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, will be fought to a finish at a meeting to be held to-night at the home of Mrs. David Dale, on High Street. The contest is for the honor of being elected Regent, Mrs. Jennie Canfield and Mrs. Elizabeth Calloway being the contestants. Miss Fickler E. C. Overton is the retiring Regent. She recently was accorded the honor of being elected Vice Regent of the Pennsylvania Daughters of the American Revolution.

Just whether Mrs. Canfield or Mrs. Calloway will carry off the laurels at to-night's meeting is a problem too deep for mere mortal man to attempt to solve. The friends of each aspirant have been waging a spirited campaign for votes and each side is claiming victory. Owing to the keen rivalry for the honor it is expected that the meeting will be largely attended.

Another Scarlet Fever Death.

After an illness of but a few days, Lowell, the 13 years-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Norman Myers, died at 8.50 o'clock, on Sunday evening, at the home of his parents, on South Allegheny Street. The child's death was due to scarlet fever, this being the second death from that disease in the last two weeks. On Monday four houses in the South ward were under quarantine and cards posted announcing the presence of scarlet fever. The Parochial school, which was closed for several days, was reopened on Monday. The two public school buildings in Bellefonte are being fumigated daily to guard against any invasion by the disease.

To Paint County Bridges.

The County Commissioners on Tuesday opened bids and awarded contracts to the following lowest bidders for painting county bridges:

Lose bridge, Haines township, to A. S. Stover, Aronsburg, $33.

Fleisher bridge, Potter township, to S. C. Brungart, Spring Mills, $16.

Roopsburg bridge, to Penn Decorating Company, of Bellefonte, $28.

Wore Trousers 67 Years.

Miss Susan Fowler, of Vineland, N. J., celebrated for many years as the original bloomer woman, died on Monday, aged 87 years. For more than 67 years she wore trousers instead of skirts. Up until a few years ago she cultivated a farm.

Good Bill Signed.

Governor Tener has signed the bill making it a misdemeanor to present in any theatre or moving picture show anything of an indecent or immoral character.

Postoffice Robbed.

Burglars on Monday night visited the Winburn postoffice. The safe was blown open and upward of $600 in money and stamps secured.

CLINIC AT OPERATION BUT THE PATIENT DIES

Seven Physicians Witness Interesting Case at Hospital.

BODY NOT DISSECTED

Was Wanted by Anatomical Board Without Embalming but Law Requires that all Bodies Shall be Embalmed Before Being Shipped.

An operation somewhat rare here although not an uncommon one in some of the hospitals in cities, was performed at the Bellefonte hospital on Thursday, last, with Dr. Ball, of Lock Haven, operating, and Dr. Locke, of this place, assisting. Seven physicians, all told, were present, a clinic being held because of the interesting character of the case. Peter Collage, of Pleasant Gap, an Austrian, was the patient. The operation, as such, was regarded as a complete success, but on Saturday night Collage died.

Collage had been in the hospital for three weeks prior to the operation. When it was finally decided to place him under the knife, Dr. Locke invited Dr. Ball to take charge. The operation included removing an abscess in the stomach and sewing together the stomach and intestines. In addition to Dr. Ball and Dr. Locke the physicians present were Dr. R. G. H. Hayes, Dr. E. S. Dorworth, Dr. George F. Harris, Dr. David Dale and Dr. J. L. Seibert.

There was some thought, after Collage's death, of sending his body to the Anatomical Board, at Philadelphia, for dissection at Clinics. It appears that a law prohibits acceptance by a common carrier for shipment of a body which has not been embalmed. The Anatomical Board does not care for embalmed bodies. It was finally decided to have Collage's body prepared for burial here.

STORM CAUSES DAMAGE

Moves Barn, Upsets Chimneys and Unsettles Orchard Trees.

The severe storm which passed over this section on Monday afternoon caused considerable damage to several properties on the back road to Zion, about two and one-half miles from Bellefonte. The 75-foot barn on the Olevine farm, now owned by Mrs. John Kline, was moved about three feet from its foundation. The roof on the barn on the Hale farm, tenanted by Calvin Corl, located nearby, was blown off. Quite a lot of damage was done at the house also. The chimneys were blown down and sent crashing through the slate roof on the house. The coal bin at the Weaver school house was picked up by the wind and carried a distance of about 35 feet. Eight trees in the orchard of the Hale farm were torn up by the roots.

Although the rain came down in torrents in this part of the county, little or no rain fell in the vicinity of Howard. Superintendent Harry C. Valentine, of the Scotia ore mines, reports that the rain there was one of the heaviest known in recent years.

Academy Defeats L. H. Normal.

The Bellefonte Academy baseball club on Friday of last week defeated the strong Lock Haven Normal nine, 5-1. Symes, for the Academy, pitched a perfect game after the first inning. It was in that inning that the Lock Haven boys scored their only run. The Academy boys had on their batting clothes, one of their hits being a home run.

Wolford-Dorman.

At the United Evangelical parsonage Amos Wolford, of Mill Hall, and Miss Amanda R. Dorman, of Nittany, were united in the holy bonds of matrimony Saturday afternoon, April 29th, 1911, by Rev. J. F. Hower. The bride is a splendid young lady and is popular with a large circle of friends.

Water Appeals May 16.

At the meeting of Bellefonte borough Council, held on Monday night, last, President J. C. Harper announced that he had designated Tuesday, May 16, at 7 P. M. for hearing water appeals. The hearing will be held in the Council chamber.

State Police at Orviston.

Two members of the State police have been assigned to Orviston to keep a lookout for hunters and fishermen suspected of violating the game and fish laws.

Fire at Flemington.

The home of David Knarr, at Flemington, was slightly damaged by fire on Tuesday. The blaze was confined to the roof and soon extinguished.

SUBTLE VENGEANCE.

The Gift Dumas Bestowed on a Friend Who Insulted Him.

Alexandre Dumas the elder, the great novelist, had, as is well known, some black blood in his veins and was of an unforgiving if not almost cruel nature. In his earlier days he received a dire insult from one whom he called his friend. To the surprise of all who knew him Alexandre took no apparent notice of the wrong, but instead applied himself to looking carefully after the welfare of his supposed friend. He took him with him into society, introduced him here, presented him there and so continued for three years, at the end of which time he stood as "best man" at his friend's marriage.

The wedding feast being concluded, Alexandre Dumas was leaving the house when an acquaintance joined him and as they walked along said: "I have often wished to say how I have wondered at your great kindness to M. X., whom we have just seen married. You have the most forgiving nature that I have ever met with. He insulted you grossly some years ago, and yet ever since you have devoted yourself to his happiness and at last assisted him to get married."

"That's precisely," remarked Dumas slowly, with a sinister chuckle. "I flatter myself that I have given him the most furious and lynx eyed mother-in-law in France." — London Telegraph.

NATURAL MEASURES.

The Hand, the Pace and the Cubit of the Scriptures.

The first "natural measurement" to which the memory naturally recurs is the hand, four inches, employed in determining the height of horses. This measure is, of course, derived from the breadth of the palm, and it has become so well fixed in popular esteem that it is unlikely it will ever be superseded.

Another popular natural measure is the pace, and probably every countryman who has had to do with land has used it. The usual method is to stride off, taking as long steps as possible, calling each pace a yard.

A natural measure much employed by a dressmaker is the yard as determined by stretching the material to be measured between her chin and her outstretched hand, or if it be a matter of inches she will fold the banded upper joint of her thumb along the cloth. These natural measures are generally close enough to serve all practical purposes.

For many hundreds of years there was employed the measure of the forearm from point of elbow to tip of middle finger. This was the cubit of the Bible.—St. Louis Republic.

Church Theaters.

Few people know that plays in England, Germany, Italy and France were fostered for religious purposes by the church centuries before they were taken up as a separate secular business. Moreover, few visitors to St. Paul's cathedral in London, realize that that church during Elizabeth's reign and the first years of the reign of James I. set aside one of its adjacent buildings for use as a secular theater. Its little stage was famous, and the company of choir boys as actors presented many of the great plays of Shakespeare's time. They acted from about 1598 to 1608 under the management of Edward Pierce, their great master in music, who as church almoner had business control of these adjacent buildings owned by the church.—London Standard.

Colored Rain.

Showers of red rain have fallen more than once in the world's history. In the middle ages they were looked upon as awful omens of war and bloodshed, but nowadays we know the hue of the "rain of blood" to be due to the presence of a tiny red insect, a variety of water flea. Red rains are very rare, but in volcanic regions gray rain is comparatively common. Sicily has had many showers of this shade. They are caused by the upper atmosphere being full of ash colored volcanic dust from Etna. This dust is infinitesimally fine and colors the rain as it falls.

A Good Age to Stop At.

A certain London merchant had for years given a dinner to his employees on the occasion of the birthday of his daughter. How long this custom had held may be gathered from the following. The head clerk of the office rose, as was also the custom, and proposed this toast:

"Gentlemen, we enjoy this evening the felicity of celebrating, as we do every year, thanks to his generosity, the twenty-ninth birthday of the respected and always amiable daughter of our worthy employer. I give you, gentlemen, her health and happiness." —London Mail.

Irritating.

"He has a mean disposition, hasn't he?"

"I should say so. He's the kind of man who'll rake in a jack pot on a bluff and then after he's stacked up the chips will spread out four hearts and a spade for everybody to look at." —Detroit Free Press.

A Mean Swindle.

"The meanest man has been discovered."

"What has he been doing?"

"Swindling amateur poets. Getting them to send 10 shillings for a poetic license." —London Tit-Bits.

Whatever government is not a government of laws is a despotism, let it be called what it may.—Webster.

RARE OLD WATCH

Mrs. W. H. Close, of Oak Hall, has Timepiece of Revolutionary Days.

One of the most interesting and rare old relics to come to our notice in a long time was exhibited in "The Republican" office on Saturday of last week. It was an old gold-case watch, now owned by Mrs. Sarah Benner Close, wife of W. H. Close, of Oak Hall. Mr. Close had the watch with him and proudly exhibited it while at "The Republican" office, calling here in company with former Sheriff W. A. Ishler.

The history of the rare old watch dates back to the days of the Revolutionary war. In the beginning it was owned by General Philip Benner and from that time down to the present it has remained in the possession of the Benner family. General Philip Benner was one of the early and most prominent residents of Centre County, locating in Spring township in 1792 and remaining there until his death, in 1833. He was a native of Chester County. When a young man he took up arms against the British, serving under General Wayne, who was a relative. After the Revolutionary war he engaged in the manufacture of iron in Chester County. In 1790 he purchased what was known as Rock Furnace, in Centre County, erecting there one of the first forges built in the county and subsequently adding another forge and also a furnace and a rolling mill.

The old watch in question was in General Benner's possession during the Revolution. He later gave it to his son, Philip, who subsequently presented it to his son, Henry, and the later hand-edited down to his daughter, Sarah, now the wife of Mr. Close.

The watch is about an inch and a half across the face, and almost one inch thick. It is of the old-fashioned chain winding type and even today is apparently in good condition. The gold case is almost worn through, showing the effect of long and constant handling. The dial numerals are as clear and distinct as ever. By pressing a small pin it is possible to lift the works out of the case. By pressing another small pin the glass covering on the face of the works may be lifted, although held at one side by a tiny hinge.

Mr. Close said that he has had frequent offers for the watch, one being an offer of $100 cash. All were declined, however, it being the desire of his wife that the watch remain in the family for another century or more, if possible.

Auto License Bill.

According to the provisions of a bill signed by Governor Tener automobile dealers can no longer use licenses of the dealer's class upon cars kept for hire, under the provisions of Senator Clarence J. Buckman's amendment to the auto act of 1909. The amendment provides that dealer's class licenses may be used upon cars kept for testing or selling only. Cars kept for hire will have to be licensed as private cars. The amendment also compels dealers' licenses to be marked with a large "X," which the state highway department now does for its own convenience.

Stringent provisions against using such licenses upon any class of cars than the two mentioned are also included with a maximum fine of $25 for violation. If any dealer wishes to contest the case, he may get the law knocked out, for while Buckman quoted the law properly in title and body, he failed to designate the year or date of its enactment, and this might lead to judicial opposition.

Keep Your Money at Home.

Think of the hundreds of thousands of good Centre county dollars which have been wheeled out of the pockets of our citizens for all kinds of worthless mining stocks, for worthless building lots in "coming cities" and in other equally worthless ventures. Had this money been kept at home and spent for lime, fertilizer and other honest common sense articles the soil on these old hills would be as good as the best anywhere.

GOVERNMENT CAREFUL BUYER

This is Especially True in the Purchase of Cloth in Big Lots.

The men of the United States army come nearer knowing to a certainty what they are buying in the way of cloth than do any other consumers in the country, says Mary Heaton Vorse in Success Magazine. When the government gives out a million dollar cloth contract it sees to it that it gets material according to specification.

The specific contracts for various sorts of cloth are elaborate and go into the technical side of the matter the number of threads to be used to the yard, the kind of wool to be used in the manufacture—for the United States soldier has to be well dressed in clothes that will stand the strain of weather and of work.

On Governor's Island, New York City, there is a testing laboratory for cloth. A specification of the weight per linear yard of each kind of cloth is mentioned; each bolt of goods is weighed, and if it falls short of the proper weight it is thrown out. Next the question of wear and tear is considered and again the specification is stated that each special kind of cloth will stand a strain of so many pounds to the inch filling way. So after weighing the next test is to cut a sample and try in a machine the strength of the cloth. If it will not stand this test the cloth is thrown out.

After the cloth has been pronounced perfect for weight and strength, the dye tests are made; it must stand two acid tests for perspiration and the material must stand boiling for ten minutes in a certain soap solution, showing that it will stand washing with strong alkalis; and finally comes the weather test, the material being exposed thirty days on the roof without changing color appreciably.

If the cloth has passed its examinations successfully each yard of each piece of cloth is inspected, being run over machines for the purpose, while inspectors watch for imperfection in the weave. An eighth of a yard for each imperfection is charged to the manufacturer.

So when the cloth is finally sent to the contractor to be made into uniforms it is known to be of really good material. Each spool of thread, each button, each lining, each filling used in the clothes of soldiers has its own special test.

A Span of 25 Years.

In 1886 Grover Cleveland was president of the United States; Queen Victoria had not yet seen the pageant of her first jubilee; William I. was German emperor, Francois Paul Jules Grey the head of the French republic, Humbert L. king of Italy. They have gone. Four other presidents have entered the White House, two kings have sat on Queen Victoria's throne, two Kaisers have held the scepter of the first war lord.

And of all the myriads of human beings who were then living, men, women and children, more than two-fifths have passed away. In 1886 there were 56,000,000 of people in the United States; 33,000,000 of them are left in the 95,000,000 of the present population. Twenty-three millions have died, the harvest of a quarter of a century. The Boer war has been fought and our war with Spain and in the Philippines. The air has been conquered. The Panama Canal has been brought into being.

The genius of Edison and the great inventors has made the miraculous commonplace; automobiles, the phonograph, wireless telegraphy, aeroplanes, are among the products of these 25 years. Science has moved forward magnificently, the arts have followed—perhaps a little less conspicuously. New York has more than doubled her population; San Francisco has risen from ruins. There are eight more states in the union, 38,000,000 more people, $56,000,000,000 more wealth.

A Hard Egg to Beat.

The Snyder County Tribune says: We have noticed in a number of our exchanges the different claims made in regard to the laying capacity of chickens: Here is one that is hard to beat. Mrs. C. W. Keller of the Isle of Que wishing to set a hen went to the home of her mother and secured a setting of eggs. In handling them one fell and was slightly cracked. Mrs. Keller secured a piece of paper and pasted it over the crack in the egg and then set them under the hen. To her surprise and consternation this egg hatched two perfect and fully developed chicks. The little ones are now over a week old and just as happy and healthy as if nothing out of the ordinary had transpired during the course of incubation.

Couldn't Escape the Sentence.

A despatch from Washington says: After being convicted and sentenced to serve five months in the Washington county jail, in addition to paying heavy fine and costs for illegal sale of liquor, then fighting his case up to the highest court in the state and being twice defeated in his effort for vindication and freedom, and finally making a frantic personal appeal to Judge J. A. McIlvaine and District Attorney C. L. V. Acheson, E. G. Dudley, a druggist and prominent resident of Washington Friday night shortly before 10 o'clock walked to the county jail and gave himself up to Sheriff John C. Murphy.

Senator Penrose.

In the reorganization of the United States Senate for the new Congress Boies Penrose, senator from Pennsylvania, becomes the leader of the Republican membership in that body. Succeeding Nelson W. Aldrich as chairman of the Finance Committee. Though not the oldest senator either in service or years, Mr. Penrose takes rank as commanding a position second to none in a chamber which has marked the presence of America's most illustrious sons and is today without its peer among legislative council, says the Pittsburgh "Gazette Times."

"No other man Pennsylvania has sent to the United States Senate," says a writer in the Washington Post, "has attained the position of prominence in that body now held by Boies Penrose." And he might have added, with perfect truth, that Senator Penrose has won this distinction by long, patient and arduous work for his state, its people and its industries. Well-born, from his boyhood in easy circumstances, an honor man at Harvard, of a literary turn of mind and fond of the great outdoors, it would have been but natural that Mr. Penrose should follow the paths of private life and patrician pleasures. But after brief experience as a practicing attorney he was lured by the call of politics, for which he had a native bent. Hence he set out to make a career in statesmanship and party leadership and for a quarter of a century he has been useful and influential in considering all the larger problems concerning his commonwealth and his country as they came before the Republican party for discussion and solution. So today finds him occupying a post and filling responsibilities worthy the best efforts and most strenuous application of masterful men.

The Gazette Times is not unmindful of the severe criticisms and harsh judgments that have been visited upon Senator Penrose because of his partisan activities and his energy in organization. In this regard, in many instances and on many occasions, he has been cruelly wronged and maliciously or ignorantly misrepresented. As a matter of fact, sent to Washington by high commission to represent the people of Pennsylvania, for fidelity, resourcefulness, profound knowledge of all that relates to his constituents, discriminating judgment as to the merits of various important subjects of legislation, capacity to achieve and ability to debate, he has few superiors at either end of the capitol. He is a very good command for hard work, a general of common sense, and scrupulously thorough in the endless detail that falls to senatorial duty.

Mr. Penrose's service in the Senate has been creditable alike to him and to his state, and his fellow Republicans in Pennsylvania have reason to be proud and grateful that at 50 years he has reached such honors in a forum which demands the highest talents and compels the full measure of intellectual attainments of any man who aspires to the seats of the mighty.

Murat's Daring in Battle.
I have read that my grandfather's three distinguishing characteristics were high chivalric courage, great skill as a general and almost unparalleled coolness in the hour of danger. His form was tall, his tread like that of a king, his face strikingly noble, while his piercing glance few men could bear. He had heavy black whiskers and long black locks, which contrasted singularly with his fiery blue eyes. He usually wore a three cornered hat with a magnificent white plume of ostrich feathers. This plume, with many other relics, is now in the possession of my eldest brother, Prince Murat. My grandfather's dazzling exterior made him a mark for the enemy's bullets. The wonder is that, being so conspicuous, he was never shot down and was rarely wounded. I have read that at the battle of Aboukir he charged with his cavalry straight through the Turkish ranks, driving column after column into the sea.—Princess Murat's Memoirs.

Passed the Bottle Too Quickly.
Will Low, the painter, told this story of the Latin quarter days of Robert Louis Stevenson. Low and Stevenson were great friends in their youth. Their friendship indeed continued up to the time of the writer's death.
"Louis," said the artist, "was no less diplomatic than brave. He could be fiery, and he could also be gracious and pacific. One night, I remember, we sat in a garden in Montmartre. The red wine had been flowing pretty freely, and one member of our party got heated and aggressive. Finally some one said a thing that this fighting chap disliked. As soon as the words were spoken he grabbed up a bottle and hurled it at the other's head. It was a strong, true shot and would have hit the mark had not Stevenson sprung to his feet and caught the missile.
"Tut, tut, George," he said to the thrower—"tut, tut! If the bottle is passed so quickly none of us will be able to stand out the evening."

Poor Thackeray.
Sir William Howard Russell's diary for April 1852, has this amusing glimpse of Thackeray:
"The sportsmen among whom I had the honor to be numbered were of the Winkle order. Thackeray, Dickens, John Beech, Jerrold, Lemon, Ibbotson, were invited, and carriages were reserved to Watford. As we were starting a written excuse was brought from Dickens to be conveyed to Mrs. X. by Thackeray. The party drove up to the house, and after compliments Thackeray delivered the billet. The effect was unpleasant. Mrs. X. fled along the hall, and the guests heard her calling to the cook: 'Martin, don't roast the ortolans; Mr. Dickens isn't coming.'
"Thackeray said he never felt so small. There's a test of popularity for you! No ortolans for Penderennis!"

Hiring a Mother-in-law.
In Marseilles the salary of a mother-in-law hired to fill the position for a few hours is quoted at 1s. 6d. It was a case of separation of the girl's parents. Custom decreed that the mother-in-law must be present at the marriage ceremony, so the obliging matron agreed to go to give her consent on condition that a carriage be sent for her, and if not, said she, she would stay at home. The hour for the wedding came, but the carriage did not, so the mamma stayed at home. The bridegroom in desperation when she did not appear ran out into the street and hunted up a promising looking woman, who agreed to come and act mother for the sum named. So she gave consent and blessing to the daughter whom she had never seen in her life before.—Buffalo Express.

The Nile or the Sky?
The barge sped like an arrow over the water, leaving behind it a silver wake that soon was effaced. A few frothy bubbles breaking on the surface alone testified to the passage of the craft, already out of sight. The river banks, yellow and salmon colored, unrolled rapidly like papyrus bands between the double azure of the heavens and the water, these so alike in tone that the thin tongue of earth which separated them seemed a causeway built across an immense lake and made it difficult to decide whether the Nile reflected the sky or the sky reflected the Nile.—"One of Cleopatra's Nights," by Theophile Gautier.

Confirmed His Suspicion.
Ben Nathan, the English humorist, on returning home from a visit to this country was expatiating to a friend upon the glories of California. After listening patiently the friend said:
"But there must be some disadvantages in living there?"
"No," said Mr. Nathan, "it is a perfectly ideal place. For any man who will work."
"Ah," broke in the friend, "I knew there were some disadvantages!"

Buried in Secret.
Two ancient kings were buried in secret. Attila, king of the Huns, after his siege of Rome, died in Hungary A. D. 453. His soldiers, desirous of giving their great leader a royal burial, inclosed his body first in a casket of gold, this in one of silver and this in one of lead, and transported it into a desert. There slaves were selected, and under the direction of men who were sworn to secrecy they dug the grave of the dead monarch. When this was accomplished no traces of the spot were left. The slaves were all cruelly slain.
Alaric, king of the Goths, the celebrated conqueror of Rome, died when with his army at Cozenza, south Italy. His men turned the course of a river, interred the body of their sovereign, with much treasure, in its bed and restored the stream to its channel.
No man has ever lighted on the resting place of either of these kings, who in this respect resemble Moses, of whom it is written, "No man knoweth of his sepulcher unto this day."

Died From Bad Writing.
German handwriting attains a degree of illegibility unknown in Latin script. A tragic instance of this fact was afforded by the death of Johann Bacher, an Austrian musician of the last century. Bacher spent most of his leisure for fifteen years in compiling a history of the Viennese opera. When the manuscript was completed he submitted it to the Imperial academy, which had promised to publish it. In three months it was returned with a statement that no member of the academy could decipher it. Bacher then sought to have it copied, but no copyist capable of deciphering it was to be found. As a last resource he determined to dictate his work to an amanuensis only to discover that the greater part of the manuscript was illegible even to himself. The thought of his wasted years of labor unhinged his brain, and in a fit of depression he committed suicide.

Going Back a Long Way.
Pick up any peevish book and you will find it bristling with ancestral names whose presence is much more difficult to explain than that of the fly in the amber. And as you descend in the social scale the fictions multiply—from the pedigrees of the landed gentry to the family trees proudly cherished in hundreds of middle class homes. But these lineages, aspiring as they are, are of mushroom growth compared with many that are claimed with seeming honesty. At Mostyn hall you may see a vellum roll, seven yards long, headed by no less famous an ancestor than "Adam, son of God." Another pedigree at the college of heralds starts thus modestly with Adam and the garden of Eden, and Wales has many a family tree which traces descent with unerring hand from the same remote origin.

What Became of the Trouser.
Of Judge Parry's many stories of the Manchester county court that about the comedy of a man's Sunday trousers is one of the best. In the plaintiff's box was a woman. In the defendant's an elderly collier. The plaintiff stated her case: "I lent you mon's missis my mon's Sunday trousers to pay 'is rent with, an' I want 'em back." The defendant at first replied, "There's nowt in it at all." Pressed for a more definite reply, he scowled at the judge and protested, "Why, the 'ole street knows all about them trousers." But Judge Parry was not the "ole street," and he patiently encouraged the defendant to talk until he got the explanation, "Why, yon woman 'an my missis drank them Sunday trousers."—Westminster Gazette.

Catching Cuttlefish.
Cuttlefish require deft handling. The bait, which consists of a rough chunk of fish fastened to a hook or even tied to a string, is not dropped over the side to be swallowed, but to excite the gustatory organs of the cuttle and to be slowly pulled up until those mollusks have reached the surface in a vain attempt to embrace it with their long arms. Then in a moment a gaff is plunged into the leathery mantle of the would be diner, and the creature is unceremoniously flung into the boat.

His Qualifications.
Writing to the leader of a string orchestra, an aspirant for a position was requested to state his qualifications. Complying by mail, he said, among other things:
Yours recd. I can play the fiddle and some on trombone, also zillyfoan. Have played foot at parties, but prefer pickles. Respt., O. M.
P. S.—Have taken twelve lessons on the guitar. Would be willing to teach myself the cornit. Terms, union rates. Respt., O. M.

Woman Fatally Burned.
Thursday morning at a few minutes after 10 o'clock Mrs. Charles Reiley, whose maiden name was Mary Shields, residing at Lewistown, took some paper and other rubbish into the rear of the lot and set fire to it near a manure pile, the straw of which also caught and the fire spreading towards the line fence Mrs. Reiley it is supposed undertook to tramp it out. Being a large woman and her skirts spreading out these caught fire whereupon she started to run for the hydrant at the rear of the house. Rev. E. T. Rhoades, who resides in the vicinity, seeing the burning woman, sprang across the two intervening fences and hastening to her assistance arrived at the hydrant simultaneously with the woman, who when he reached her grabbed him around the body and he was compelled in self protection to tear himself away from her grasp, after which he grabbed up a piece of carpet and wrapping her in it smothered out the fire, but not until all her clothing, composed entirely of cotton material, was completely burned and the woman fatally injured, there not being a spot on her body as large as one's hand that was not burned. She did not inhale any of the fire but her physician states that she cannot recover.

In his endeavor to save the woman Rev. Mr. Rhoades' left hand was seriously burned, but he escaped other injury, even though in the grasp of Mrs. Reiley for a few seconds, because his clothing was all wool and did not catch fire as readily as it would had it been cotton.

Handsome Business Blocks.
The Phillipsburg Journal says that building operations in Phillipsburg are on in earnest. Bricklayers are at work on the Hagerty and Schoonover buildings, both of which are to be handsome and substantial structures; concrete has begun on the foundation of the new Episcopal church, which is to be a magnificent edifice, and now comes the destruction of the old building of the Nelson Estate on North Front Street, which is to be replaced by the Globe Store Co.'s new buff brick block, having a frontage of 44 feet and a depth of 120 feet, with all modern features which go to make a convenient, comfortable and substantial building. There will be two store rooms on the first floor, and offices and flats on the second.

The erection of this splendid building is very commendable on the part of this enterprising firm in that it shows they are glad and willing to spend their money in improvements of such a substantial character, in addition to giving work to a goodly number of people at a time when there is a slight local depression.

Ditmar Grebe has the contract, and his reputation as a builder is sufficient to insure the owners that the erection of this building will receive the most scientific attention and reflect great credit upon all concerned.

Henry Houck Takes Oath of Office.
Henry Houck, of Lebanon, Pennsylvania's grand old man, took the oath of office for his second term as Secretary of Internal Affairs on Tuesday morning at the state capitol. Mr. Houck's term did not begin until Tuesday, May 2, but as he intended to go to southern states on a trip for his health this week, the oath was administered in advance by Secretary of the Commonwealth Robert McAfee. Mr. Houck has been suffering from an attack of grip at his Lebanon home, but is improving, and on the occasion of his taking the oath he was welcomed back to the capitol by the attaches of his department.
With the beginning of the second term the $8,000 salary for the office becomes operative. Mr. Houck was elected in 1906, when the $4,000 salary was in effect, and as his salary could not be advanced during his term, the act of 1909 increasing the emoluments of the office will not apply until May 2.

Big Job at Postoffice.
How long does it take to sort an incoming or outgoing mail and how much time is devoted to sacking the mail, carrying it to the depots, placing it aboard trains and the sorting of it in the postal cars? How much time is required to stamp a letter? What is the cost of doing so? How many letters can a man stamp in a day?
All of these things the government wants to know and to help the United States to arrive at an answer, mail of all descriptions that is handled in the Bellefonte postoffice, including letters, newspapers, magazines, packages and even the kind that is franked, will be counted piece by piece, every day this month. Each piece of mail will be separated into first, second, third and fourth class and a daily count will be kept.
It is for the purpose of getting at the figures of an average month that May has been selected for the count, there being no holiday postcard or gift rush to occupy the clerical force.

Big Haag Circus Coming.
Lovers of the out of ordinary amusement will be interested in the announcement that the Mighty Haag shows are coming to Bellefonte on Thursday, May 25, afternoon and evening. This big circus will present decidedly the largest and greatest program of original, unique and thrilling featured acts known today to the show world. This vast tented amusement enterprise is alone in a class by itself, without a rival.

Nothing like the imperial performance provided by Ernest Haag was ever before dreamed or dared by the boldest managers.

Whatever your preference, you will find plenty to interest, astonish and edify you; there are thrilling aerial acts during every moment of which one expects to see the intrepid performers hurled into eternity, artistic and sensational equestrianism, incredible and bewildering athletic and acrobatic numbers, blood chilling jockey, hurdle and chariot races, amazing venturesome bicyclists, and phenomenal exhibitions by fierce wild beasts. In fact, so numerous and varied are the novelties offered in the rings and upon the elevated stages, and upon the mammoth hippodrome track by these shows, lack of space will not permit each of these to be mentioned. The quantity and quality of the features are such as to really stagger comprehension.

It matters not what shows you have seen or how big the Mighty Haag shows have been in years gone by, this season they completely overwhelm all past efforts.

The circus will show at the Hughes athletic field, formerly known as the old glass works meadow. Don't miss it.

National Guard Encampment.

Monroe township has been selected as the site for this year's encampment of the Third Brigade of the National Guard of Pennsylvania, says the Selinsgrove Times. A tented city will be pitched on Pennsylvania railroad land, just north of Selinsgrove, and more than 2,500 soldiers will camp, drill and fight sham battles within a radius of five miles from July 22 to 31.

The encampment will include the Ninth, Twelfth and Thirteenth regiments of the National Guard of Pennsylvania, a battery of artillery, several troops of cavalry, both regular army men and militia, besides a corps of state and another of regular army field engineers.

Each of the three regiments of infantry include 800 enlisted men, and the quota of officers, artillery, cavalry and engineers will swell the total to almost 2,600 men.

The camp will cover all the land west of the Sunbury and Selinsgrove Electric Railway company's tracks, known as the Kanty, George J. Schock, Cooper, Bolick, Hummel and Schock heirs farms. That part of the George J. Schock farm east of the trolley and extending to the Pennsylvania canal will be used as the parade ground.

A Stitch in Time.

This is a word of timely suggestion which we hope will come to the notice of every father and mother in Bellefonte. Unfortunate and regrettable as it may be, it is nevertheless true that a most malignant disease is prevalent in our community. Two little children have died in the last few weeks and a number of others are seriously ill. Loving hands are giving the best of care to the little ones who have been stricken over night, as it were, and who now are battling against scarlet fever, a disease dreaded by all and so often hopelessly fatal.

Physicians and devoted parents alone may help the children who are ill. The fathers and mothers of children thus far untouched by the disease may and can do much to keep the fever from spreading. Cleanliness in the home and about the surrounding grounds is vitally essential. Unsanitary conditions invite disease. Taken in time, any place where unsanitary conditions prevail may be made clean and thereby greatly protected should disease appear in the immediate vicinity.

At this time of the year there may be found in many cellars of homes and also in rear yards and alleys, an accumulation of refuse and filth that is a menace to health, not only to children but to parents as well. It is a common fault with most persons to put off the day for cleaning up. Most of us mean to do it, but we thoughtlessly put it off until some more convenient time. An hour or two of thorough cleaning would in two-thirds of the cases be sufficient to make cellars and yards and alleys free from what now are disease-inviting and disease-encouraging centers. What is essential, however, is immediate action. If deferred, it may be too late.

"The Republican" earnestly urges upon every father and mother in Bellefonte that before another twenty-four hours have passed the word be given to clean up about the premises. Take nothing for granted. Make inspection a personal matter. Be sure that there exists about your home nothing that might breed disease. Cleanliness may and may not be next to Godliness, but it is the greatest preventative against disease known to man. A stitch in time may not only save nine, but also, and in your individual case, it may save one or more little lives.

Falls and Breaks Arm.

Ralph Cole, an employee of the Bellefonte Electric Company and a son of Robert Cole, the architect, on Friday last fell and broke his left arm, near the wrist, under unusual circumstances. Although he fell a distance but a few feet, it was with such force as to easily snap the bones in his arm. He was repairing an electric meter in the quarters of the Independent Order of Red Men at the time of the accident. He was standing on a box and in some manner one of his arms came into contact with a heavily charged wire. A sharp current of electricity was sent through Cole's body, shocking him severely and causing him to fall from the box to the floor. He threw his left arm out to break the force of the fall, only to have it receive the full weight of his body and result in a fracture of the bones.

Death at Penn Hall.

Mrs. Maggie Neese, wife of Samuel Neese, died early Monday morning from dropsy, from which she had been suffering for some time. Deceased was aged 43 years and before her marriage was Miss Maggie Heckman, a niece of Daniel Heckman, of Bellefonte. She is survived by a husband and one son, John, and also the following sisters and brothers: Mrs. Robert Metz, Mrs. Mary Miller and Oscar Heckman, of Illinois; Adam Heckman, of Tusseyville, and Mrs. William Neese, of Spring Mills.

Married at Mill Hall.

A pretty church wedding was that on Wednesday of last week, in the Presbyterian church, at Mill Hall, the contracting parties being Miss Laura M. Mapes and Berton J. Confer. The bride is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David Mapes, of Beech Creek, while the groom is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Cline Q. Confer, of Liberty township. Both are well and favorably known and have the best wishes and congratulations of a host of friends.

RECALLS RALLY FOR GRANT

Howard Reader of "The Republican" Writes Interesting Letter.

"The Republican" this week received from one of our valued readers at Howard a most interesting letter recalling a grand rally held there for Grant during the stirring campaign in which the great commander of the Union army was the Republican candidate for President. The letter is one we highly prize, both for the interesting event so splendidly described and the kindly wish expressed for the success of "The Republican" under the present management. The letter speaks for itself and is as follows:

Howard, Pa., May 2, 1911.

EDITOR DORWORTH, "The Republican," Bellefonte, Pa.

Dear Sir:—Reading "The Republican" from week to week since you assumed charge of it has given me the greatest pleasure. It must be a source of great satisfaction to you to realize that your valued paper is again being widely read all through this section. Many years ago "The Republican" had the largest circulation of all in Howard and vicinity and everything indicates that under your management the time is not far distant when your paper will again lead all others. It already commands a wide influence among our people and that influence is steadily and rapidly growing.

It was back in 1868 that "The Republican" had the largest circulation of any newspaper that came to Howard. During that time there occurred an incident that I wish to recall, if it will not be asking too much space in your newsy and interesting columns. It was during the campaign of Grant and Colfax, in the autumn season of the year, that there was held here the greatest Republican meeting in the history of the old town we love so well. The Bald Eagle Valley Railroad had just been completed and was merely in its infancy. It had one passenger car, attached to the 5 P. M. freight going East, and also West at 9 A. M. in the same manner. On the night of the political rally of which I am writing, all manner of crudely built cars were pressed into service to handle the immense crowd which wanted to attend the meeting. I have to smile to myself as I recall how crude were some of the cars used that night and how they compare with the modern coaches in use at the present time.

Howard was ablaze with excitement that night. I remember that the photograph car of E. L. Bergstresser (now at Hubbersburg) was placed in the space between the present Pennsylvania Railroad station and C. C. Lucas' store. The Hollanders, Welsh, Irish and English united into one solid body and hired men and teams to go to the Alleghenies. There they spent several days bringing in logs of rich pine, which were split into long splints and made into torches at the Howard furnace, now the Howard Brick Company, three-fourths of a mile east of town.

The mighty throng that came on the cars had provided themselves with red capes and "wide-awake" lamps, and the two processions formed into line at the furnace and marched to Howard. Arriving there they paraded right up to the speaker's stand. The crowd there, I remember, was tremendous. As I write this I can see the male quartette that stood in the stand, facing the crowd, and sang "Seymour is a Goner and Grant's going to Occupy the Chair," (history tells how true were those inspiring words.) One of the quartette was your father, Dr. Dorworth. When he reads these lines I am sure the scene will all pass before his eyes, just as it does before mine.

After the singing by the quartette two speakers addressed the big audience. One was Boyd Hutchinson, and his peer as an orator has never been in the presence of a Howard audience since that eventful night. For eloquence and logic he had no superior and his ringing words sent wave after wave of enthusiasm through the crowd. Then followed W. W. Brown, at that time editor of "The Republican," from whose brilliant mind had come sentiments, expressed in his paper and with its large circulation here had warmed up the blood in the veins of every patriotic citizen. It was a great night and one I shall never forget.

I can easily recall some of those who were in the crowd. One I recall was Captain George Brown, then 80 years of age. He lived in town where, James Wyble now lives. One of his sons, Samuel, was one of the managers of the Howard iron furnace. The sextant sons were as follows: John, Samuel, Joseph, George, Mark, William and James. Not one of these sons remain here today, but the fruits of their labor will follow "The Republican." Why? Because you represent the same party blood that marched in 1868. Your grandfather, William Jenkins, was a leading manufacturer of iron at the rolling mill, one mile beyond the furnace. Still another influential spoke in the fact that your mother was a teacher in our public school. Your father was a leading medical practitioner at this place for years.

All you need to do is to edit a clean, newsy county paper and your list of subscribers in two years from now will be the largest in Howard. I am glad to be enrolled as a friend of "The Republican." I wish you and your interesting paper all the success in the world. Your paper has lots of friends here today and is making new friends every day. Good luck to you for a successful and prosperous future. With kindly regards, asked that Council accord the same assistance as last year to the Civic Club in cleaning up the town. Clean-up week begins on Monday, May 15. Council approved the suggestion.
A READER.

It was announced that assurance had been received from the State Highway Department that work on building the State road through Bellefonte would be resumed in the next few days and rushed to completion.

Dr. J. P. Sebring, Jr., was granted permission to erect signs on Allegheny and Spring Streets, directing the public to his recently built garage. The signs must be erected and be of a size to meet the views of Borough Engineer Meyer. The latter reported the need of immediate repairs to plank crossings in Logan and Curtin Streets. The repairs were ordered made.

On motion of Mr. Keller Council ordered that the several officers elected in March, 1910, continue until the first Monday in January, 1912. While the matter did not come formally before Council, it was explained that the borough books would be turned over without further delay to the borough auditors. The latter had prepared to mandamus Council in the event the books were not surrendered.

General complaint was registered regarding the condition of sidewalks in the borough. Notice was ordered sent to the Bellefonte Electric Company and to Mrs. Louisa Bush to build a new sidewalk along the old car shops dam.

Two Good Baseball Games.

Two rattling good baseball games are scheduled for Bellefonte this week. On Friday afternoon, at 3 o'clock, at Hughes field, the Bellefonte Academy club will meet the strong Bloomsburg Normal School nine. The Bloomsburg team is considered one of the best in the State. On Saturday afternoon, at 3 o'clock, on the same field, the Academy boys will clash with the Williamsport High School team. The Williamsport boys have an enviable record and are confident of winning. The Academy nine is about the fastest aggregation of baseball players assembled in Bellefonte for some time and the public should turn out for both games. To bring the visiting teams here a large guarantee must be paid for each game, and the public should do its part toward raising this money. A large crowd at both games will not only encourage the local boys to play their best but will also aid materially in paying the expenses. Admission 25 cents.

Freshmen Win Flag Scrap.

In the annual flag scrap at State College, the Freshmen yesterday triumphed over the Sophomores, planting their flag in front of the ladies' cottage after a two hours' battle. Several of the students participating in the scrap were pretty badly battered and bruised, one of the number being removed to the office of Dr. Kipe, where his injuries were dressed. The scrap was started shortly after 5 o'clock in the morning and was waged fiercely until 7 o'clock, when the Freshmen won out. The Freshmen had the flag pole secreted in the cellar of a nearby house for several months. So well was the secret guarded that a Sophomore who boarded in the house was not aware of the presence of the pole until it was taken from the cellar yesterday morning.

Big Minstrel Show.

The chart is open at Parrish's drug store for the big Academy minstrel show, which will be at Garman's opera house tomorrow and Saturday nights, May 5 and 6. Keeping in mind that one great drawback to home talent shows is the tendency to drag along the program until a very late hour, the management of the minstrel show have planned to close the performance each night not later than 11 o'clock. The minstrel feature will not last over one hour. Then will come the funny "Mrs. Flynn's Lodgers," which is one of the greatest one act comedies ever produced on any stage. All lovers of baseball should attend the show, since the proceeds will be for the benefit of the baseball association. Admission will be 75, 50 and 35 cents.

Harry Goss Breaks Arm.

Harry J. Goss, formerly of this place and well known as an expert automobile driver and machinist, broke his right arm while cranking a Thomas car at Williamsport on Tuesday morning. Harry recently went to Williamsport to become foreman for the Keeler Motor Company. His numerous friends here will be sorry to learn of his misfortune, but will be glad to know that he is getting along nicely and will soon be about again.

This, with the very capable manner in which the subject was handled, made the talk a pleasure to all present."

ROYAL Baking Powder Economy

The manufacturers of Royal Baking Powder have always declined to produce a cheap baking powder at the sacrifice of quality.

Royal Baking Powder is made from pure grape cream of tartar, and is the embodiment of all the excellence possible to be attained in the highest class baking powder.

Royal Baking Powder costs only a fair price, and is more economical at its price than any other leavening agent, because of the superlative quality and absolute wholesomeness of the food it makes.

Mixtures made in imitation of baking powders, but containing alum, are frequently distributed from door to door, or given away in grocery stores. Such mixtures are dangerous to use in food. In England, France, Germany and some sections of the United States their sale is prohibited by law. Alum is a dangerous mineral acid, and all physicians condemn baking powders containing it.

The label of alum baking powders must show the ingredients.

A very genial and welcome caller at "The Republican" office on Tuesday was D. S. Boyer, of Milesburg. Mr. Boyer presented us with a big silver dollar, advancing the subscription of his wife's paper another year. A heavy fur cap which he wore bore testimony to the fact that Milesburg, like other places, was experiencing the cold wave which appeared this week. Mr. Boyer laughed as he pertinently remarked that Monday was warm enough for straw hats but that twenty-four hours later a fur cap was the proper thing for comfort.

It was a habit of the wise Frenchman Arago to look during his lectures at the young man who appeared the dullest of the students, and when he perceived that this one understood he knew all the others did.

Once in a drawing room he had just explained this habit of his to some friends when a young man entered and saluted him familiarly.

"But to whom have I the honor of speaking?" asked the scientist.

"Why, Professor Arago, you do not know me? I always attend your lectures, and you never take your eyes off me the whole time."

Intellectual Courtship

It is a Very Different Affair From Simple Love.

By EDITH B. ARNOLD.

Copyright, 1910, by American Press Association.

Miss Margaret Lyall took all the degrees of the under and post graduate university courses. Being possessed of an independent income, it was not necessary for her to make a living, but she was so clever that the college sent her abroad to study for a professorship. She returned with an additional foreign degree and assumed the chair for which she had been preparing herself.

When Miss Professor Lyall was twenty-seven years old it occurred to her that after all she would prefer to be a wife and mother to growing old as a teacher. If she were to choose the more natural course it was high time she were doing so. She was considered a very attractive woman and was comely. She had had a number of offers, but had not been thinking of marriage and for this reason had accepted none of them. Now, having determined to wed, she looked over the list of her suitors and settled on Royal Richardson, a journalist.

Mr. Richardson was editor in chief of a large newspaper. He was a highly educated and a forceful man. There is no place in the world where exactness, system and, above all, a quick resource are more essential than in the makeup of a daily newspaper. Mr. Richardson had a quiet, dignified way with him that carried great weight.

"That match," every one said, "is between one of nature's highest type of men and the same grade of women. Such a couple united should produce important results for good. What a splendid spur the one for the other!" "No doll wife for me," said Mr. Richardson. "Give me a woman with a brain in her head!" "If I am to be married," said Miss Lyall, "I prefer a man who is certainly not my inferior. If he is my superior I will follow his lead, for that is a law of nature. If he should turn out to be of poorer judgment than I, then that same law will compel him to submit to my decrees."

Two persons were especially disappointed at this engagement. One was Walter Fairbanks, a quiet, unobtrusive man several years younger than Miss Lyall. Not being highly educated himself—he had gone into business at seventeen—he had a profound admiration for Professor Lyall. It was the acme of his desires to have such a woman for his wife. It would be like an intellectual beggar marrying one with an intellectual fortune. The other disappointed person was Miss Lucy Brooks, a girl of twenty, whose knowledge had been gained in a public school, but whose heart was as fresh as a rose and exhaled as much fragrance upon all who knew her. She had long worshiped Mr. Richardson from a distance, but considered him so far above her that it was madness for her to aspire to be his wife.

No sooner had Professor Lyall become engaged to Mr. Richardson than she began to take an interest in his paper. She liked to pick out editorials in which she could see his vigorous opinions expressed in his terse, pungent style. But one day she noticed what she had not discovered before. She was much interested in the national problems of the day and sympathized with every movement calculated to bring the trusts under a proper legal subjection. Mr. Richardson had given in his editorials an impression that this was the policy of his paper. But in an article which bore every evidence of having been written by him he made use of the term "trust buster." The next time he met his fiancée she said to him:

"Royal, I supposed the policy of your paper was to advocate the regulation of the trusts by law."

"My dear Margaret, the policy of a newspaper is an unknown quantity to any one except its manager."

"Will you kindly explain?"

Mr. Richardson for the moment forgot that he was not in his editorial chair. It seemed an icicle rather than a sentence that came through his cold lips.

"Yes; I will explain by saying that I alone dictate the policy of my paper."

Miss Lyall looked at him with astonishment. "And I alone," she said, "will decide as to the man I will marry. He shall not be one who would make use of the obnoxious expression 'trust buster.'"

She strode majestically out of the room and upstairs.

Mr. Richardson departed with a complication of feelings. He was disappointed, angered, hurt. For the first time he had been interfered with in his life work. His eyes were opened to the fact that the high grade of character, of intellect, he had wished in a wife had in this case at least proved a boomerang. If he had been called to account by another his feelings would not have been the least ruffled. But he had formed the very important plan of marrying Miss Lyall, and he saw that such a union would necessitate the rooting up of the main habit of his life.

"Good morning, Mr. Richardson," came a soft voice, and, looking aside as he walked, he met the amiable smile of Miss Brooks. It was like a warm sunshine breaking through a wintry cloud. He turned and joined her. For an hour he walked beside her, listening to her prattle, scarcely speaking himself, the girl all the while pouring balm on his perturbed feelings. He went with her to her home, and it was another hour before he left.

Miss Lyall suffered the same perturbed sensations, and as Mr. Richardson had been comforted by Miss Brooks she turned to Walter Fairbanks for similar treatment. If a person of strong mind becomes balked and consequently irritated there is a craving for some one—not to rely on for advice, but to whet opinions upon.

Miss Lyall made an excuse to send for Mr. Fairbanks in order that she might have a dummy to pound. Mr. Fairbanks proved himself admirably suited to the purpose. Not capable of understanding that higher role of elevating by an unceasing flow of information which is the great work of newspapers, he saw only the blemishes resting on the press. When Miss Lyall told him of her disagreement with Mr. Richardson he was surprised that she did not know that his paper was owned by a combination of industrial magnates. This opened Miss Lyall's eyes not only to the fact of an entire absence of sympathy between her and the man who was employed to oppose views she held very strongly, but that there was, after all, a comfort in coming down with her aeroplane and having a heart to heart talk on the earth's surface with a man who knew what was going on there.

But Mr. Richardson before any announcement was made of the breaking of the engagement concluded to make an effort to set matters right between him and his fiancée. He called upon her, and she came down with a disappointed look on her face.

"I have called to say, Margaret," he began, "that perhaps you are not aware that a newspaper is not exclusively a concern for dispensing noble ideas. Noble ideas there may be in it, but they would not be there at all if the paper had no means for its publication. Unless a newspaper can be made to pay—"

"Has that anything to do with pretending to advocate ideas and at the same time sneering at them?"

"I don't admit!"

"What is your definition of the term 'trust buster'?"

"A trust buster? Why, a trust buster is one who advocates breaking up those combinations which are essential to business at the present day."

"But I don't admit that they are essential."

"Certainly your opinion can have nothing to do with the management of the paper I edit."

"If the paper you edit is the exponent of the principles," or, rather, the want of principles, of the man I am to marry it certainly is of great importance to me."

"I am employed to carry out the policy laid down by the owners of the paper."

"Why, then, do you pretend to carry out opposing ideas?"

"Margaret, a newspaper is a practical affair. It must have advertisements; to secure advertisements it must have circulation; to have circulation it must have readers. Readers are of various opinions. One must steer a middle course to—"

"Enough! You, the man with whom I had decided to unite my very being, have no principles of your own?"

"My principles are my own; the paper's principles are its own."

"Then if you were paid to advocate anarchy and assassination you would do so without a qualm of conscience?"

"Margaret," he said, changing his tone to one of despondency, "if our union is to be one of argument instead of simple love it will be a failure."

"And unless I marry a man whose principles are not for sale it will be a failure."

"You are impracticable."

"Goodbye!"

Mr. Richardson and Miss Lyall had again found themselves in the position of those

Birds of tempest loving kind
Thus beating up against the wind, though neither of them loved the tempest. They were obliged by their nature to beat up against it. Again they sought solace in the sympathy of their intellectual inferiors. Mr. Richardson called on Miss Brooks, and Miss Lyall called on Walter Fairbanks.

Richardson sat on a sofa beside the lithe, laughing girl, rested by her every innocent word, by her every dainty motion and more than all by that perpetual smile which hovered over her lips. She cared nothing for the policy of his paper, and, as to his principles, she did not for a moment doubt that they were noble. A lock of his hair fell down over his forehead, and with the touch of her waxen fingers she put it back in place, laughing as she did so. He took the fingers in his hand and kissed them. Then he kissed her. That settled it.

Miss Lyall talked to Walter Fairbanks about her conversation with Richardson. He listened to her with a word, looking at her the while with a pair of sympathetic eyes. Whenever she said, "Am I right?" he replied, "You are," and when she said, "Am I wrong?" he said, "You are not."

In other words, Miss Lyall got from Mr. Fairbanks what she wanted. And so in time she became accustomed to getting what she wanted and found it more convenient to place Mr. Fairbanks where she could have him all the time. She married him.

Mr. Richardson and Miss Lyall met occasionally and have intellectual talks. She considers him a brilliant man, but without principle. He considers her a very smart woman, but educated in a theoretic, impractical school. Each is very happy at home.

POULTRY FEEDING TEST

Interesting Experiments at State College are Explained.

An interesting statement, showing the results of tests in feeding poultry, especially in feeding young chickens, at State College, is presented in a bulletin issued several days ago. Prof. Thomas I. Mairs announces that the latest tests confirm others in the feeding of growing chicks.

"These results," writes Professor Mairs, "confirm those of former tests, namely, that chicks grow faster on wet mash than dry of the same composition. In a former test, however, there was greater loss on the wet mash. In this test (begun in the spring of 1909) the loss was about the same in each lot."

In the same bulletin Prof. Homer W. Jackson, professor of poultry husbandry at Pennsylvania State College, gives the following advice on feeding chicks:

"Young chicks are raised on all kinds and combinations of feeds, and success is, in the last analysis, more a matter of care than feed. The common practice of using cornmeal dough, while comparatively successful sometimes, is not to be recommended, and its use is not likely to secure the best or most rapid growth and development of the chicks. Probably the most satisfactory ration for young chicks, for the first few weeks, is bread moistened with milk or water and squeezed dry. A small amount of grit or sharp sand may be mixed with the bread. An ample supply of chick grit is always desirable in feeding young chicks. It may be mixed with the feed or spread on the floor of the coop or run."

"After the first few days the bread may be omitted and a mash, somewhat similar to the mash fed to the laying hens, may be given morning and evening, with two or three feeds of finely cracked grains or chick feed during the day. Cracked corn, cracked wheat and pinhead oats mixed in equal proportions make a fairly satisfactory grain mixture."

Much care must be exercised in feeding young chicks the first few days. At least one-half of the ration should be small grains scattered in straw or chaff, so that the chicks may secure some exercise. Green feed should be supplied daily. For this purpose, lettuce, chopped onion tops, green clover or grass are excellent, and when these are not available, mangles or potatoes will give good results.

"After chicks are weaned and turned out on the same range, hopper feeding may be adopted with good results. Nothing is gained by stinting growing chicks. They should have all the feed that they can be induced to eat. Hoppers, or low boxes, divided into compartments and supplied with mash, cracked wheat or corn, meat scrap or grit, may be kept before them after they have reached 6 or 8 weeks of age with perfect safety."

"In addition to the feed in the boxes, it is often desirable to give one feed of wet mash a day, and possibly a feed of some kind of grain other than that kept in the hopper."

"Care should be taken that the chicks do not become crowded in brooders or coops, and as they grow larger coops should be provided or the size of the flocks reduced from time to time. Many flocks of young chickens are delayed in maturity or stunted in growth from crowding in coops or brooders at night."

"With the exception of Leghorns, there is no particular gain in separating the sexes of the growing flocks until the male birds are to be fattened for the market. At this time a separation should be made, as it is not desirable to give the same ration to growing pullets and market stock."

The Hoodoo Number 13.

"Anybody can have No. 13 who is attached to the hoodoo numeral, but I want to keep as far away from it as possible," said John Warner, a St. Louis traveling man, to a group of knights of the grip in a local hotel yesterday. "I had a stock of goods consumed by fire on the 13th of April, was notified of my misfortune in a telegram containing thirteen words, and I was thirteen miles from home when I received the dispatch and staying at a private house of a friend which is situated on the thirteenth number of the street. If there had been a No. 13 among the rooms I sure would have slept in it. Today I received notice from the insurance company that my loss had been adjusted at $1,300 dollars. I won't take it. They can pay me $1,299 if they like, but nothing that looks like 13 would be entertained by me." Superstitions? No, I'm simply cautious, and will give myself the benefit of any doubt in connection with this unlucky number. I will not even look at the hoodoo, much less have any actual dealings with it."

EWING-PATTON

Daughter of Congressman Patton Weds Man from Texas.

A pretty wedding and one that was of social prominence, was that solemnized on Thursday evening last, in the Curwensville Methodist Episcopal church when Miss Emma Patton, daughter of Congressman and Mrs. Charles E. Patton, became the bride of William Kennedy Ewing. The groom formerly resided at Uniontown, being the son of Judge Ewing, of that place. More recently he has lived at San Antonio, Texas, to which place he will take his bride after an extended honeymoon tour.

The wedding ceremony was performed by Rev. Dr. Benjamin Mosser, of Huntingdon, assisted by Rev. E. H. Witman, of Curwensville. The church was beautifully decorated. The bride's gown was of white satin, with bridal veil and bouquet. Her maids were dressed in pink. The bride was attended at the altar by her sister, Miss Rebecca Patton, as maid of honor, and Miss Elizabeth Garrison, of Pittsburgh, as bridesmaid. The groom was attended by James Conrad, of Uniontown. The ushers were Nathaniel Ewing, of Bryn Mawr, John Patton, of Curwensville, and Albert Chamberlain and William Beckmann, of San Antonio, Texas.

School Directors Hold Over.

The election of School Directors will hereafter be held in November, and the Director whose term of office expires in June, 1911, will hold over.

The February election has, of course, been abolished, and the November election in the year 1911 is the election appropriate to the election of School Directors. The act of Assembly approved March 2, 1911, entitled,

"An Act to carry into complete operation the amendments to sections 8 and 21 of article IV, Section 11 and 12 of Article V, Sections 2 and 3 of Article VIII, Section 1 of Article XII, and Sections 2 and 7 of Article XIV, of the Constitution of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, adopted November Second, one thousand nine hundred and nine, preventing any hiatus in the terms of office affected thereby, fixing the time when the terms of certain officers shall hereafter begin validating the official acts of certain officers during their extended terms and defining the term 'public officer' as used in this Act," provides, in Section 1:

"That all public officers holding office at the date of the approval of said amendments not otherwise provided for, whose terms of office expire at any time during an odd numbered year, shall continue to hold their offices until the first Monday of January in the next even numbered year, and that all such officers whose terms expire in an even numbered year shall continue to hold their offices until the first Monday of January in the next even numbered year."

The term "public officer" is defined in the Act to include "all officers elected by vote of the people, whether the offices that they fill were created by the Constitution or by special or general Acts of Assembly."

Therefore there will be no vacancy in the office of School Directors in June 1911.

The Country's Oldest Postmaster.

Martin L. Gardner, of Navarino, N. Y., who describes himself as the oldest living postmaster, has applied to the Postoffice Department for a pension. He was appointed in 1853 and served through every Republican administration until recently, when his office went out of business as a result of the establishment of a rural free delivery in the neighborhood. The Postoffice Department has no pension system. Silas Hatch, of Hatchville, Mass., is Gardner's nearest competitor in the race for longevity records. He was appointed in 1858 and is on the job still.

WHOSE COW IS IT?

An Interesting Story of a Tramp and a Little Calf.

The arrest of Henry Knill has caused considerable excitement in Hillside, near Tionesta, where he has lived for nine years with his wife and four children. Knill runs a dairy and has a fine stock of Holstein and Jersey cattle. He does a large and profitable business and is considered wealthy. Grand larceny is the charge made against the dairyman.

Robert Cutter, who caused Knill to be arrested, charges him with stealing a Holstein cow, now in Knill's possession, in a very peculiar manner.

"Eight years ago," Knill states, in explaining how he got the calf, "I was a fireman on the old Western New York & Pennsylvania, and one night when we were running between Hickory and Dawson I saw a calf on the track right ahead of the engine. It was too close to get across and I knew we would hit it. The engineer had also seen the calf, and we looked out the window of the cab as we passed by.

"But we saw no signs of the animal, I climbed out on the running board to see if it was on the cowcatcher, and I nearly fell off the running board when I heard a voice say, 'I've got her; I've got her.'

"I looked down on the cowcatcher and there I saw a tramp who was beating his way, with the calf in his arms.

"The calf was perfectly quiet and I thought it was dead, but the hobo said it wasn't hurt a bit, and neither was he. I asked him if he could hold the calf until we got into Dawson and he said he could, and would be glad to do so if I wouldn't put him off the train.

"I went back to the engine and told the engineer. He laughed and said I could take the animal up to my house when we got to Dawson and keep it in the barn until the owner came for it.

"Well, sir, I kept that calf for months, and when nobody came after it I added it to our stable and it helped me to start out in the dairy business.

"The calf grew into a fine milk cow; in fact, she is the best in the township and I took a first prize at the cattle show with her just the other day. After the prize had been awarded and everybody was admiring the prize winners, a farmer came up, looked the cow over and asked me a lot of questions. I thought he wanted to buy her, from the interest he showed, and I gave him all the information he wanted as to how much money I had made from the sale of her milk and butter.

"He then turned around and said the cow was his; that it had been stolen off his farm some years ago."

Competition.

Everybody is selfish enough to want a monopoly, but competition is the thing that produces excellence.

When a young man graduates in law or medicine he usually looks for a location where there is the least competition. He wants the field to himself. If he is an attorney he is apt to seek a place to practice where there is a weak bar, naturally supposing that it will be easier to shine as a star among the dim satellites of Blackstone.

But that is where he makes his mistake. If he happens to possess a really superior legal mind, he should seek the fiercest competition. To be in the atmosphere of great lawyers, to study their methods, and to strive to outgeneral and circumvent them, is calculated to sharpen every faculty and develop every talent. He sees at once that he must attain to an extraordinary degree of excellence if he is to remain in the race, and he sets himself to his task with energy and enthusiasm. He is stimulated to his greatest exertion. If he is made of good metal the abrasion brightens him, and the harder he is rubbed by his associates the more he shines.

One great lawyer at a bar helps to educate every member. He is the mirror in which they see their own deficiencies. And it is the same in other professions and vocations. Had Dr. Agnew, or Pepper, or Gross located in some village, where there were no great examples to follow and little experience to be gained, they probably would not have risen to eminence.

Had Horace Greeley or Charles A. Dana been content to edit a little rural weekly, instead of going to the metropolis, where they were wetted to a keen edge by powerful competition, they would not have been known outside of their own little bailiwick.

Competition is heartless. "Excell or perish," is its motto. But it is the acid which tests your metal. If you are gilded over with assumption and conceit, it will expose you and relegate you to the junk heap. If you are made of the right stuff, it will prove the fact to your contemporaries, and the world will recognize your merits.

DIED IN KANSAS

Henry Steinkirchner Passes Away; Was Born in Bellefonte.

The "Kansas Republican," published at Newton Kansas, on Saturday, April 22, published the announcement of the death of Henry Steinkirchner, a prominent citizen of that place, who was born in Bellefonte. Deceased was the brother of Mrs. Robert Rosenhoover, of Bellefonte, and was well and favorably known to the older residents here. The article, telling of Mr. Steinkirchner's death follows:

The many friends and acquaintances of Henry Steinkirchner were pained to learn of his death which occurred this Saturday morning, April 22. It was known that he had not been well for some time, but his condition had not been deemed serious until the last few days. Early in January, he had an attack of grippe which left him with a suppuration of the middle ear, which developed into inflammation of the brain. He had made frequent trips to Wichita to be treated by a specialist and his friends noticed him on the street Wednesday morning. Thursday he was not so well but he was able to be down stairs. Later in the day his condition became serious, and although everything possible in the way of medical aid was rendered him, it was God's will that he be taken, and at eight o'clock this morning he passed away.

Henry Steinkirchner was born in Bellefonte, Pa., Nov. 27, 1853, was married on February 7th, 1877, to Elizabeth McGowan, coming to Kansas the following spring. He built his home on West Tenth Street where he lived twenty-one years, later moving to the present home at 130 West Eighth street. He traveled over the country in the early days when the country was sparsely settled buying stock, and there are very few farmers in the county who are not well acquainted with him. Four years ago he started a packing plant on West First street and since with his son Leo, has worked in the interest of the plant.

His integrity and honest in his business dealings and his strong Christian character have won him the admiration and love of a large circle of friends, who extend sympathy to the sorrowing ones.

A wife and eight children besides brothers and sisters are left to mourn his loss: They are Mrs. John Stein, of Las Vegas, N. Mex., Mrs. Austin Elliott, Eva, Louise, Leo, Bernard, Henry and Arthur; three brothers, George, whose home is in Pennsylvania, and Frank and Joel of Newton, and two sisters, Mrs. Biberstein, of Philadelphia, and Mrs. Robert Rosenhoover, of Bellefonte, Pa.

Mrs. Mary A. Rider Dead.

Mrs. Mary A. Rider, widow of Samuel Rider, and one of the oldest residents of Centre county, died at her home, near State College, at 5 o'clock Wednesday evening of last week after an illness of three weeks, due to the infirmities of age. Mrs. Rider was born in the County of Lancashire, England, February 28, 1822, and came to this country with her parents when she was 12 years old. She resided in Centre county, near the place where she died, during the balance of her long life. She became the wife of Samuel Rider in 1841 and lived with him as a faithful and loving wife until his death, twenty-seven years ago. She is survived by the following children: Mrs. A. R. Love, Denver, Col.; Mrs. Joseph Hull and J. A. C. Rider, of Tyrone; C. W. Rider, of Avis, Clinton county; Mrs. C. W. Henderson, of Spruce Creek, and Frank Rider, of Altoona, besides a number of grandchildren. The venerable lady was a member of the Methodist Episcopal church for the notable period of seventy-nine years, having been converted in her childhood. During all these years she lived a consistent Christian life, having set her children a splendid example of upright and cheerful living. She was blessed with so kindly a disposition that she never spoke ill of another and she instructed her children to refrain from speech when they could utter nothing good about others. At the time of her death she was a member of the Methodist Episcopal church at Ross' and her neighbors and friends feel that both church and community have sustained a heavy loss. The funeral services were held at her late home at 10 o'clock Saturday morning and the interment was made in Ross' cemetery.

Never Kick a Man When He's Down.

The other day in Cleveland, Ohio, a hobo asked William Blust, a citizen, for a dollar with which to purchase a table d'hôte dinner. Blust refused this request. Whereupon the hobo hurled at him a bunch of profane epithets. Blust promptly knocked the hobo down and then kicked him, for which the assailant was arrested and taken before Police Judge McGannon. After the judge had heard the testimony he said:

"You were justified in knocking the man down, but you did wrong to kick him when he was down, and I therefore fine you $10."

Roofing Guarantees.

When a maker guarantees his roofing, it merely means that he puts his claims for it in writing, and if there is any dispute afterwards, there are thousands of ways in which the maker can evade responsibility if he chooses.

The makers of Congo Roofing, however, have devised an interesting plan which gives the buyer absolute protection. With each roll of roofing is furnished a Surety Bond issued by the National Surety Company of New York, guaranteeing the faithful performance of the guarantee by the manufacturers. This gives to any possible complainant a Court of Appeals to which he can go, over the head of the manufacturer. In fact, this guarantee bond so pledges that if the manufacturers of Congo Roofing should go bankrupt or close out their business, the Surety Company would still continue to guarantee the reliability and satisfaction of Congo Roofing. The guarantee on the two or three ply is for 10 years.

A copy of the Guarantee can be obtained by addressing the Potter-Hoy Hardware Co., Bellefonte, Pa.

Took an Appeal.

Attorneys A. Reed Hays and L. J. Durban, representing R. K. Nolan and Parks Murtiff, proprietors of the Coleman St. Charles hotels, of Lewistown, took an appeal to the Supreme court sitting at Pittsburgh, May 2, from the decision of the Mifflin county license court in refusing license to a bonafide hotel which furnished entertainment to both man and beast. Nolan had entered into a lease for a period of five years at a monthly rental of $400 for the building, while Murtiff had spent $50,000 in the purchase of his hotel property the year previous to license being refused.

ELKS AT ATLANTIC CITY

They Will Hold Twenty-fifth Grand Lodge Reunion There July 10-17.

With several governors and ex-governors, half a dozen or more of the members of the United States senate and between forty and fifty of the members of the house of representatives who wear the antlered button in attendance, the twenty-fifth grand lodge reunion of the Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks, to be held at Atlantic City from July 10 to 17, will bring together a notable galaxy of distinguished Americans as well as an enormous host of the best people on earth.

Aside from those mentioned, the Hon. William Jennings Bryan, of Nebraska, and Judge Ben Lindsay, father of the juvenile court system which has spread throughout the land, a means to the salvation of many a thoughtless small boy, will be "among those present." Both are to address the international convention of Christian Endeavor societies, which meets here during the week prior to the coming of the antlered fraternity and as both are loyal Elks and proud of the fact they will remain over to greet their brethren from the Atlantic to the Pacific.

Governor Wilson, of New Jersey, whose fame has spread across the country since he was hailed as a democratic presidential possibility, is expected to welcome the grand lodge, at its opening session on July 10, and practically every branch of the state government will be represented. The presence in the big Music hall at the extreme end of the steel pier of men high in the councils of nation and state, will be striking demonstration of the far reaching influence of a typically American order.

Committees in charge of the innumerable details of preparations are working like beavers. Whole lodge delegations and small parties are being quartered through the hotel agency established by Atlantic City lodge. The beauty of this plan is found in the fact that there will be no increase in rates because the hotel men who were instrumental in prevailing upon the Grand lodge to vote for Atlantic City at Detroit a year ago, have contracted with the local committees to deal with the invading host fairly and squarely.

Word came from the south during the past week that this growing section will be more bravely represented here than at any grand lodge reunion for several years. New Orleans has already promised a delegation of 250, with a large marching corps. Atlanta will send some of its best known citizens to the convention with an exhibit portraying some of the resources of the southland.

Matrimonial Catechism.

What is marriage?

Marriage is an institution for the blind. Why do some people never marry? Because they do not believe in divorce. When a man seriously thinks of marriage, what happens?

He remains single.

Should a man marry a girl for her money?

No, but he should not let her be an old maid just because she's rich.

When a girl refers to a "sad courtship," what does she mean?

She means that the man got away.

Is an engagement as good as a marriage?

It's better.

In selecting a husband, why does a girl prefer a fat man?

Because a fat man finds it hard to stoop to anything low.

When asking papa, how should a young man act?

He should face papa manfully and never give him a chance at his back.

When the minister says "Do you take this woman for better or for worse?" what does he mean?

The bridegroom's people construe it one way, and the bride's family interpret it another. It is very sad.

When a man says he can manage his wife, what does he mean?

He means he can make her do anything she wants to.

When a child is smart and good, to whose family is it due?

To its mother's.

When a child is bad and stupid, to whose family is it due?

We refuse to answer.

Is it possible for a married man to be a fool without knowing it?

Not if his wife is alive—United Presbyterian.

This would be an excellent game to play at a bridal shower. Cut it out, please, and file it for future use.

"I am pleased with your good paper and may success forward you," writes A. W. Houser from the Dobbin lumber region of West Virginia in a letter to "The Republican." In his letter Mr. Houser directs that we send "The Republican" to Mrs. Houser, at Pleasant Gap. If his plans materialize Mr. Houser will return home for a visit about July 1. Due to his personal worth and industry he has been meeting with gratifying success in West Virginia, but like many others working away from home he never forgets old Centre County.

One of the most genial callers at "The Republican" office in many a day was J. W. Sunday, of Pine Grove Mills, who dropped in on Saturday to pay his respects and also become enrolled as a subscriber. Mr. Sunday is a staunch Republican and naturally was desirous of securing a good Republican newspaper, which explains why he directed us to place his name on our list. For many years Mr. Sunday was engaged in farming, meeting with gratifying success. He eventually sold his farm and moved to Pine Grove Mills. The little button in the lapel of his blue coat tells its own eloquent story. He saw active service in the Civil war, serving with distinction and bravery. He enlisted in Company B, 148th Regiment, under Captain James Weaver, of Milesburg. Captain Weaver took the company out but after General Beaver lost his leg Captain Weaver was the ranking captain in charge of the regiment. Rather suspecting that Mr. Sunday was quite young when he entered the army, we asked him what was his age at that time. He smiled as he explained that he was but 16 years old when he enlisted. When we inquired how he managed to overcome the fact that he was but 16 years, Mr. Sunday's eyes twinkled, a broad smile swept across his face, and he replied: "Well, to tell the truth about it, I guess there was a little lying done somewhere."
